Protest I-10 bridge

More than 70 persons concerned with development of waterways along the Gulf Coast from Texas to Florida turned out for the public hearing conducted here Tuesday afternoon by the Corps of Engineers on protests over the State Highway Department's application to build the Interstate 10 bridges over Jordan River.

Col. R.C. Marshall, district engineer at Mobile, presided and testimony was taken in the Corps's real estate office for two and a half hours in objection to the 20 feet vertical and 50 feet horizontal clearances for the twin fixed bridges.

Harrison and Jackson counties joined Hancock authorities in opposition to these clearances as detrimental to industrial development of this section of the Mississippi coast while state and regional bodies viewed it as retarding growth.

H.H. Shattuck, chairman of the county's new port and harbor commission, envisioned the Jordan River as being linked one day with the Catahoula as a navigable waterway from the Bay of St. Louis to East Pearl River, extending Harrison County's investment in its seaway project. It would thwart industrial development, he declared, and the port commission will oppose anything which would do so.

A detailed summary of waterway improvements in the three Mississippi coast counties was presented by Philip Koonce of Michael Baker, jr., Inc., consulting engineers for the port commission. He established expenditures for public improvements since 1956, including $1,975,000 proposed now in Hancock, at $32,610,000 whereas $670.5 million is the estimated capital investment in major plant sites in this region in the same period because of its accessibility to water. Tonnage at the greater port of Pascagoula increased more than 1,000 per cent during the eight-year period, Koonce noted.

An average of more than 2,000 acres a year have been occupied by major industries in the eight years, he continued. With only about 25,000 acres lying south of the proposed I-10 route available for feasible waterway and industrial development, it is "readily apparent that waterfront lands south of the proposed highway would be exhausted within 12 years if the established usage rate continues", Koonce said.

The engineer urged 40 feet

Waveland told fire rate needs

Seven recommendations, several of which have either been fulfilled already or are in the process, to reduce Waveland's fire insurance status from Class 10 to Class 8, were presented to Town Council by the Mississippi Fire Rating Bureau at the council meeting Tuesday night.

A large portion of the recommendations dealt with building codes and council recessed until Wednesday night to take up these aspects at a meeting with the town's planning and zoning board which has asked to submit several proposals of its own.

The building code should be amended to place the fire limit area only in the downtown business section, the rating bureau wrote, rather than by wards. It suggested Coleman Avenue's boundaries be from Terrace to St. Joseph Streets, south to Arlington

Police Chief Lathon Garriga and Patrolman Robert Goodsell arrested Nicholas Dorich of Waveland on charges of reck- … driving, causing property … and leaving the scene of the accident in connection with the case. He is scheduled for trial tonight in Mayor's Court.

According to Garriga the mishap occurred about 12:45 a.m. The Ashers, awakened by the crash, told the youth to come in while they phoned for help. They called the police and the lad departed, Garriga said. The car, a 1955 Chevrolet, was found behind a building on Old Spanish Trail about 10:40 a.m. and the youth was arrested shortly afterwards.

Open huge MTO test stand bid

Uncle Sam opened bids Tuesday on another whopping sized job at Mississippi Test Operations with Malan Construction Department of Koppers, Inc., submitting the apparent low price of $8,079,003.

The job is the second S-II test stand at the NASA installation and the government estimate was $8,176,000. Koppers is at work now on its $17,280,157 contract for the giant S-IC stand.

The Corps of Engineers at Mobile, agent for acquisition, engineering and construction at MTO, this week awarded a $309,438 contract to Chaney and Hope, Inc., of Madison, Tex., for additional industrial water supply facilities at the test site.

This job is to begin shortly and be completed by next July. It will provide water for cooling exhaust gases from rocket engines during test firing operations and for fire protection for the facility.

The Corps also called for bids Dec. 22 at its Mobile office for construction of a large mobile equipment maintenance building to be located in the industrial complex on the southwest corner of the reservation. It will be used for repairing and servicing passenger vehicles, ambulances, trucks, fuel

Bishop dedicates St. Clare's plant

The new educational plant of St. Clare's Parish in Waveland was dedicated in formal ceremonies Sunday afternoon by Bishop Richard O. Gerow of the Natchez-Jackson Diocese in the presence of members of the congregation, visiting clergy and Sisters of the Dominican Order who are operating the elementary school which opened this fall.

The bishop was assisted at the services in the sanctuary, the school building and the convent housing the sisters assigned to teach here by Rev. Kevin Bambrick, pastor of St. Clare's, and Rev. Harold Gasper, rector of St. Augustine Seminary of the Divine Word Missionaries.

Mother Imelda, O. P., mother general of the Dominican Order, was among 85 to 90 nuns and visiting members of religious orders joining in the occasion along with Catholic clergy from the area.

A reception in the school cafeterorium followed the dedication and blessing of the buildings. Msgr. James J. Hannon, pastor of Our Lady of the Gulf Parish at Bay St. Louis, served as master of ceremonies with James Lagasse bringing the message from the people of St. Clare's Parish, and James DeBlanc, president of the school's home and teachers as-

48th Flea-Fly classic Sunday

Eight football teams, ranging in weight from 43 pounds up to 118 pounds, will square away Sunday afternoon at St. Stanislaus Stadium in the 48th renewal of the Flea-Fly classic sponsored by the Knights of Columbus.

While the boys' prowess on the gridiron will be the center of attention Sunday, current interest is in the race for king and queen of the game. Pupils at Our Lady of the Gulf Parish School are running for these honors and votes will be counted this afternoon for the queen and Friday for the king.

A parade will form at St. Stanislaus College about noon Sunday and travel along Beach Boulevard to Main Street, to Necaise Avenue and into the stadium where the kickoff for the first game will be at 1 p.m.

The youngest Fleas and Flies will play two eight-minute quarters; the second group is scheduled to compete in two 10-minute quarters and the four older groups for two 15-minute quarters.

Joseph Benvenutti, jr., is general chairman for the KC event assisted by Pat Murphy, Phillip Scafide and Alvin Genin. Mrs. Bernard Piazza, president of the KC auxiliary, is in charge of the court arrangements while Tony Morreale, George Heitzmann and Irvin Bontemps will man the concession stands.

Coaches who have been working with the boys for several weeks in preparation for the big contest include Benvenutti, Hugo Favre, Harry Favre, James Ryan, Nelius Favre, Alvin Genin, Ricky Larkin and Brother Joseph of St. Stanislaus.

SANTA IS COMING

Santa Claus is to formally arrive in Bay St. Louis at 2 p.m. Saturday at the toll bridge and continue to Kern's 5 and 10 where he will make his annual stop. The jolly old fellow is to slip in earlier for a visit at Bill's Dollar Store from noon until 8 p.m. Friday.

Waveland, school men in huddle

Trustees of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District and Waveland's board of aldermen conferred informally behind closed doors Monday night at Bay High School in an effort to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement over school building plans for the system.

Robert Hamilton, president of the school board, said the group discussed acquisition of a 10 to 12 acre tract for an elementary school to serve the South Bay and Waveland areas which school authorities have been talking about for some time.

He said the conference resulted from a mutual agreement to talk over the situation when it was obvious from the vote in last week's school bond election that Wavelanders were not happy with the building plans. Waveland voted 227 to 94 against the bonds.

Hamilton indicated that within "a couple of years" the school board will ask for another bond election to finance construction of an elementary school in the southern part of the district. The necessary land

Woman 5th fatal

Mrs. Tanya Karen Lacey Caspolich, 22, became Hancock County's fifty fatality when she apparently died instantly in a one car accident at 2 a.m. Saturday.

Her 1954 Oldsmobile was sliced in half when it struck the concrete Fenton bridge about four and one-half miles east of Kiln. The body was found by Deputy Sheriff Chester Favre about 20 feet down the bridge ravine.

A coroner's jury with Justice of the Peace Frank Seph, as coroner, Constable K.C. Mitchell, bailiff and Deputy Favre, J.T. Jacobs, W.J. LaFontaine, Everett Ignatius, N.A. Perniciaro and Robert Karl, jurors, ruled death due to automobile accident.

Last week we invited our readers to serve as guest editorial writers to give us a vacation. Here is the first of what we hope will be a provocative series.

On bicycles

The law recognizes bicycles as vehicles and requires that they observe the same rules as cars and trucks. Cyclists properly remain off sidewalks where they might collide with pedestrians. They operate on the extreme right side of the road, moving in the same direction as automobiles in the same lane.

This latter rule presents some mental objection to the cyclist who is moving north beside the seawall on Beach Boulevard. He easily imagines himself being hemmed in between the wall and a motorist; but he is mistaken. The motorist about to pass him will slow down until traffic, passing in the opposite lane, has cleared so as to permit him to give the cyclist wide clearance.

On the other hand, when the cyclist chooses to operate his bike on the left side of the road he is liable to collide with an oncoming motorist who finds that he has no choice but to stop suddenly or collide with a car in the opposite lane or with the cyclist. This latter predicament was seen recently to cause a cyclist to leave the road and proceed on the turf shoulder; but he would have had no reason to leave the road had he been travelling properly on the right.

Another unnecessarily hazardous situation was faced last week by a cyclist in the downtown traffic when he ran between the line of cars parked at the curb and the line of cars proceeding on the same side but with barely sufficient space left for the line of cars moving on the opposite side. The cyclist may not have been able to advance rapidly if he had chosen the correct side of the street, but he would have avoided the danger caused when he forced the motorists to move over too close to the opposite lane.

Of course locally we have up-coming on Jan. 1 the Newhouse Bowl, formerly called Sugar. Samuel I. Newhouse owns the Times-Picayune, which for weeks has pushed Syracuse for the out-of-area contender. He also owns the Syracuse newspapers and recently gave Syracuse University $15,000,000, which we doubt was solely to get his picture taken with President Johnson.

Yule cheer

Our readers write

Editor, Sea Coast Echo:

As a resident of Bay St. Louis, and also in my official capacity as secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, I would like to have the opportunity through the medium of your newspaper to compliment the merchants, business establishments, and professional people, as well as the utility men who did the physical work, for the gay, new Christmas decorations on the Beach in the business area, the first block of Main Street, and the first block of North Second Street.

As the festive season approaches, these bright, new garlands, and attractive figures helped considerably in instilling the feeling of the joy of the Yule-tide. We have not yet seen them lighted, but know they will sparkle merrily on the chilly December nights.

I feel the entire city owes these [illegible] a word of thanks. I did want to say mine.

The west boundary will be a random tangent line and will have no identity with any existing line to the best of our knowledge. "THERE GOES THAT VOICE AGAIN! HEAR IT?"

Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress have now fanned out on so many junkets that it may put a crimp in bringing servicemen back home for the holidays. The airplanes will be otherwise occupied.

Here are some of the plush junkets the solons are enjoying:

Rep. Mike Kirwan, the Youngstown, Ohio, Democrat, is touring sunny Hawaii and the South Sea islands of Samoa just at the time that winter is setting in on Youngstown. Supposedly Mike is inspecting public works projects in these islands—an area of grass huts.

Mike is the famous Congressman who passed a $10 million fish acquarium for the District of Columbia when its citizens would much rather have had the money to improve schools.

Another Congressman, Charles Jonas, of North Carolina, a Republican, is covering the same delightful territory on a separate junket—also courtesy of the taxpayers. However, Jonas is not going with Mike. One is a Republican, the other a Democrat, and the two don't mix.

Two Congressmen who do mix are Otto Passman of Louisiana and John Rhodes of Arizona. The latter, a Republican, is a staunch supporter of Barry Goldwater, and in Louisiana Passman, a Democrat, was strong in his praise of Goldwater.

Passman takes pride in cutting the foreign aid budget. But he and his Republican friend from Arizona are now spending money touring such interesting countries as Lebanon, India, Thailand, Hong Kong, and Tokyo. Incidentally, Passman has a pet jeweler in Hong Kong where he buys all sorts of watches and necklaces to bring back home.

Another interesting junketeer is Jamie Whitten of Mississippi, who is touring South America with a group of Congressional colleagues. Whitten is the Congressman who held up the appropriations for the Agriculture Department for seven long months last year arguing with Sen. Dick Russell of Georgia over whether a peanut laboratory should be located in Georgia or Mississippi. They compromised the dispute by putting a sweet potato laboratory in one state and a peanut laboratory in the other.

Steelworkers' war

The United Steelworkers' revolt to unseat Dave McDonald as president is getting hot and bitter.

Dave is being accused of enjoying high society instead of battling for union members. His opponents say he is a frustrated actor and still wants to be one. They overlook the fact that McDonald has done an outstanding job of bargaining with the steel industry and has put across highly profitable contracts for the union.

Today his enemies point out that he collected a $50,000 salary last year plus $30,000 expenses, a total of $80,000. Also he put his brother Joe on the payroll for $13,2[illegible], plus $14,465.26 in expenses.

However, I. W. Abel, the man leading the revolt against McDonald, drew $35,000 in salary plus $20,584 in expenses, for a total of $55,000 plus.

So goes the battle inside the United Steelworkers.

Inside the Congo

What's really behind the tragedy in the Congo is a drive by Red China to take over the most lucrative and disordered part of Africa.

For some time the Chinese have been stepping up their drive to infiltrate Africa beginning with the East Coast and extending to the Congo. The Chinese embassies in these areas are loaded with money and their agents are extremely active.

In Kenya, once a model British Colony, now an independent republic, the Chinese put up a quarter of a million dollars behind Oginga Odinga, the minister of the interior, who not only occupies a potent position as head of the police force but is also head of a powerful local tribe.

When this writer was in Africa last summer, the Chinese and Russians were actually competing against each other for the most influence in East Africa.

The Russians have not been active, however, in the Congo. It has been obvious from some of their conversations with American officials that they have not been happy about [illegible] developments there. Only last week the Red Chinese accused the Russians of "perfidy in the Congo."

The long-range Chinese goal is to try to take over the entire African continent. With 700 million people jampacked within their own borders, the Chinese need expansion room. They recognize that Africa is relatively empty, very disorganized, and very wealthy.

In the Congo alone are the largest copper and uranium deposits in the world, also the largest deposits of cobalt—the ingredient for the deadly cobalt bomb.

Hoover and Dr. King

[illegible]

A Conservative View

[illegible]

Statistically speaking, there may be some reason for these funeral conclusions. At the last report, with only a few precincts still missing, President Johnson had rolled up a walloping 61.3 per cent of the vote. The Republicans had [illegible] state governorships, but they had lost two seats in the Senate, 38 seats in the House, and more than 500 seats in state legislatures. They could count some pyrrhic victories in the Deep South, but otherwise, the carnage was dreadful.

Most of the loudest mourners are putting the blame for all this directly upon Senator Goldwater. Others are crying for the head of National Chairman Dean Burch. "The present party leadership must be replaced—all of it," said Senator Scott of Pennsylvania. The State Chairmen of Maryland and Virginia agreed that the election amounted to a sharp and [illegible] rejection—a complete repudiation—of Mr. Goldwater. "The Senator's 'experience,' his temperament, his philosophy, all lost millions of votes before the race ever began," said the Ripon Society. "His campaign cost him millions more."

A suggestion is in order, it seems to me, that reports of the Party's death, like those of Mark Twain's, are a bit premature. The same observation applies to all the recriminations against "Goldwater Republicanism." The Republican Party, as a viable political entity, is no more dead in November of 1964 than the Democratic Party was dead in November of 1928; and those busy morticians who propose to bury Mr. Goldwater's ideas will find that they won't lie down. These three weeks have provided a perspective that couldn't be drawn in the confusion of election night. Some further reflections are in order.

There is, first off, the remarkable fact of the vote actually cast for Mr. Goldwater. He received somewhere in the neighborhood of 26,719,000 votes, or almost 39 per cent of the total. (For the record, it appears that he really did fare slightly better than Alf Landon's 37.5 per cent of 1936). Mr. Goldwater's vote compares favorably with the 27,315,000 cast for Adlai Stevenson in 1952, and the 26,031,000 cast for Mr. Stevenson in 1956. If all those who voted for the Senator were kooks, which was the prevailing charge in October, the country is full of kooks sure enough.

The Ripon Society attempts to minimize the Goldwater vote: "Many of these votes were cast by traditional Republicans who have never voted for any Democrat," said [illegible] They liked his brand of conservatism. Is it to be seriously [illegible] that they would have worked so hard for an echo as they worked for their choice?

These considerations suggest that there is a great deal of life in the old girl yet. Any reconstruction of the Republican Party that fails to give heavy weight to these facts, and to these convictions, is bound to fail. It is not necessary, [illegible] Mr. Goldwater [illegible] our political [illegible] "conservative" and "liberal" labels. It is necessary, if the 27,000,000 are to be [illegible], to make certain that the Republican Party continues to have a distinctively conservative orientation. Once it tries to be all things to all people, it will follow the fate of the Whigs.

It might be [illegible] therapy, but one is tempted to suggest that the first step toward resurrection would be to grab a few leading characters and shake some sense in their heads. One could begin with Mr. Goldwater himself, who gains nothing whatever, and loses yet a little more, in sneering at "so-called Republicans." This way lies [illegible]. The Party's recovery could be aided, too, if Mr. Rockefeller could just be [illegible] for a while. His contributions this season have been somewhere on the minus side of zero.

The best approach, I venture to suggest, lies in Representative Melvin Laird's proposal for the creation of a "temporary party agency," outside the controversial National Committee, to provide a foundation on which the Party can be rebuilt. It is too large a topic to cover here, but such an agency—provided it sought a consensus of serious views of conservatism—could go a long way toward healing the wounds.

Hancock citizens OK MEC proposals

Hancock Counties attending the recent Programming Economic Progress meeting in Gulfport sponsored by the Mississippi Economic Council voted overwhelmingly in favor of three major proposals designed to improve the state's economy.

MEC tabulated 45 "votes" cast by local citizens at the session, 43 favoring the three proposals with two opposed. Those present agreed to present the proposals to 14 clubs and organizations in the county in an effort to have those groups make a position on them.

The proposals, briefly, call for revamping the state's property tax assessment practices and procedures to make property tax assessments more equitable at the municipal, county and state levels; acceleration of the vocational education program to fill needs in the trade, technical and industrial fields; and improvement in county road administration so as to secure maximum returns from each dollar spent in building and maintaining roads.

Following presentation of facts on the three topics, those in attendance were given ballots on which to score their beliefs about the proposals.

Free literature on the three topics is available by writing P.O. Box [illegible], Jackson. Civic clubs desiring to have a speaker explain one or more of the topics are invited to contact the MEC speakers bureau at the same address.

From the 31 counties attending the first 11 meetings, there were 2,034 votes cast, with 1949 favoring the proposals, and 85 opposing. The vocational education program received the highest endorsement, 705 favoring it to only 7 opposing. The fair property tax proposal was [illegible], with 647 favoring and 27 opposing; the county road 598 favoring, and 53 opposing.

The canvassers began work this week and the task is expected to require about three weeks to complete.

Of some 35 applicants for the enumeration in the two counties, 40 per cent passed the examinations, Bounds reported, with four chosen for Hancock and nine for Pearl River County.

Place and north 600 feet beyond Bourgeois Street. In such an area construction could be restricted to assist in prevention of fires as the town grows, the letter noted.

Adoption of standard electrical and gas codes also is requested with provision for strict enforcement and control.

Noting the town has secured a new fire pumper this fall which is a step toward better fire protection, the bureau noted equipment must be operated even under adverse conditions and called for an additional 500-gallon water tank with an auxiliary pumper; erection of a fire station with quarters for a man to be on 24-hour duty or extension of telephones to several firemen's homes; and installation of a siren system.

Robert D. Ladner, Gulfport and Picayune architect, appeared with a proposal for consideration of a library and civic center for the town, noting that federal funds to assist such a project could be available in the near future. Aldermen expressed interest but noted many demands on the town's finances.

Council withheld approval of a contract with B.M. Dornblatt and Associates for an annexation study until it can confer with the city of Bay St. Louis on its plans along those lines in the hope of avoiding conflict and the need to survey areas later.

Public utility assessment for 1964 is up $5,842 from last year, Clerk C.O. Dufour noted in presenting it for council's approval. The new figure is $192,000.

Plat of Lakewood Subdivision No. 2 was received from the developer, John J. McDonald, and referred to the planning and zoning board. Aldermen Dominick Sonier and John Longo suggested that in the future the town ask for six-inch water mains in subdivisions for increased fire protection, rather than the four-inch lines previously agreed to in this case.

vertical and 125 horizontal for the fixed structures over the Jordan to enable passage of most barge tows and estimated this additional cost at less than $200,000. "Some $800 million of federal money is being expended to afford waterborne transportation to an inland area, and yet, the highway planners would cut off the natural waterway access to several thousand acres of land in the immediate proximity of the Gulf of Mexico in order to save a small fraction of a per cent of such amount," he declared.

Statement of opposition from the board of supervisors was read by [illegible] who also spoke in behalf of State Rep. Walter J. Phillips. Mayor John A. Scafide expressed Bay St. Louis' stand and Ed Beyer spoke for the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. Joseph V. Colson of Waveland presented the stand of the Gulf States Marine Fisheries.

Joseph M. Jones, Jr. of Canal Barge Co. who owns considerable frontage on the Jordan, said his firm's barges are 50 feet wide and must need vertical clearance of 30 to 45 feet. Similar views were expressed by McVay Ward of [illegible] Waterway [illegible] H.C. Koch [illegible]

VCJ 11 granted win over Locker by loop decision

The Valena C. Jones grid squad won in its protest against Locker High for the use of ineligible players in the football game played by the two teams Oct. 2.

The final ruling, handed down Nov. 22 by officials of the Southern Mississippi Athletic Conference meeting at Wiggins, gave Jones an official win with a score of 20-13, the tally which stood at the time Locker put into the game two players who were not team members and were reported to be well beyond high-school age.

The final score of the game, 36-20 in favor of the Wiggins 11, was voided by the decision.

The week that just [illegible] was nothing if not interesting. Weather-wise we had winter, summer, [illegible] a touch of April for a couple of days. [illegible] The school [illegible] the initial [illegible] county elections, [illegible] school before the population [illegible] out of presently limited facilities. As for Thanksgiving, no one could have asked for or gotten a more perfect day. [illegible] most observed the day quietly enjoying family dinners [illegible] noted a number of men forewent their usual after dinner naps to take in the sunshine. Think the one thing we most enjoyed personally was picking a huge bouquet of still blooming summer flowers for the table, although the turkey was pretty darn good, too, come to think of it.

Feasting at Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mabel Green and Marguerite and Waldo Otis, were Mabel's daughter, Mary Jane, husband Ralph Christman and seven children of New Orleans. It was the brand new little Christman's first visit to the Coast.

Margie and Cyril Glover were Lois and Henry Kohnman's guests at the traditional turkey feast.

On Saturday Margie and Cyril and Katherine and Eddie Heath went into the Crescent City to a cocktail party honoring Katherine and Eddie's daughter Kathy who is to be wed on Jan. 23. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller were hosts.

Margie and Sidney Wood and daughters left Wednesday for Hamilton, where they visited Sidney's mother.

Basketball star Leland Mitchell and wife arrived Friday to attend the wedding of his cousin, Rosa Marie Ladner, to Dennis Beach which took place on Saturday.

The Larry Sauers are all smiles since son Larry, III, arrived home from Alaska last Sunday. He will be here until Christmas day when he's scheduled to take off for the far East on a tour of duty with the Air Force.

Get well wishes are on the way to Cecile (Dick) Turcotte who was admitted to Hancock General for tests last Thursday; to Lena Cuevas who has been a patient in the same hospital and to Pat (Mrs. Charles) Dickinson—Pat spent Thursday and Friday in Ochsner but returned home in time to enjoy a belated Thanksgiving family dinner at the home of her parents, Gerry and Lucien Gex.

New police ensignia

Bay city police are soon to be wearing really fancy patches on their uniforms. The new patch, designed by Chief Lathon Garriga and drawn by talented Nel Ducomb, are to be in the shape of the state of Mississippi with a rocket forming the center.

Our deepest sympathy goes to Mrs. Ed Harriel on the loss of her husband. Probably the greatest tribute to his many years in the field of education were the tear stained eyes of the many children who had attended school under his supervision. This is a doubly tragic time for Mrs. Harriel as her brother, John Davis, passed away in Picayune on Nov. 18.

Lucien Gex, jr., the Paul Bunyan of Grosvenor Place, has his own physical fitness program under way. He's keeping in trim by cutting logs for his fireplace and it appears that he cuts a tree and then one log at the time as the flames die down.

Mystery of the week

Who isn't smiling so broadly these days? Someone lost an upper plate last Saturday night in an establishment between Waveland and Lakeshore. No one knows if the owner doesn't remember where they were lost, or is just too embarassed to claim the choppers—if the latter is the case, we'll accept an anonymous call and let you know where they are.

The August R. Campbells of Carr Street in Clermont Harbor, residents of the area for the past 14 months, are well on the way to establishing a record for entertaining the largest number of guests since their arrival on the Coast. They have had well over 60 at various times since taking possession of their home here.

Martinolichs welcome another

We haven't seen Andy Martinolich as yet, but will bet that he's passing out great big fat cigars as he and Carol welcomed their first son, and we think he was christened Paul, last Friday, Nov. 27. The young man arrived at Hancock General, of course, weighing eight pounds and seven ounces. . .pretty sturdy, but the smallest of their tribe as yet. . .they have four daughters and each topped the first male by several ounces at birth.

The Freddie Cabells who had just the opposite problem, being parents of three sons before their first little girl arrived a month prematurely, are justly proud of their lovely little daughter. Although she weighed only five pounds at birth, she's now up to a bit over eight, and she's a living doll.

Little [illegible], Ruth and [illegible]'s youngest, has been under the weather with a throat infection, so she's in line for get well wishes.

Brewster's still around

We've been criticized for neglecting to keep our readers up to date on Brewster Mollere's activities, and we realize we've been negligent. . .but he's lost so much weight that he's been slipping by virtually unnoticed. Too, he's [illegible] with his CB radio, he hasn't even [illegible] anything exciting like a tank of ————, ([illegible] name of the tiny cannibal fish, we can't even find it in the dictionary!) or even a guppy of late, but knowing Brewster, he's bound to do something newsworthy before long.

It's too cold

Frankly, it's just too d— cold to fish and we had anticipated having a nice fat deer hunting tale from our friend Mr. C.F. (Commercial Finance, jr.) Holder. We regret to inform you that all he caught was a cold on his recent expedition.

Coleman Avenue is suddenly full of new automobiles. . .Gee Mollere, Bob McCutchon and Russell Alba are all driving brand new vehicles. We understand the automobile salesman is now a property holder. . . think we'll ask him for a few lessons in salesmanship.

Former residents Ruth and Matt Ballatin visited Betty and Fred Rose over the weekend holidays.

Here from Huntsville and [illegible] was Clarie Bell. . .need we say who he came to see???

Canine chatter

As usual, we have lost dog story. . .a [illegible] resident lost two beagles over the weekend. . .the male, Pancho, is predominately brown and white while his mate, Gypsy is black with tan trim. They were lost while hunting near Highway 43, and there is a reward. . .see classifieds for the phone number in case you find one or both.

Received a letter from that ever delightful correspondent, Frances Lawson, with whom we share many laughs. She planned to take in a Little Theater production in Baton Rouge before proceeding to New Orleans for a visit with her son and family over the weekend.

Another [illegible] visitor, Hazel (Mrs. Charles) Dobbs [illegible]

Miss Reynolds betrothed to Mr. Lawless

Announcement is made this week of the engagement of Miss Paula Reynolds, daughter of Mrs. Roberta Reynolds Thomas of Kiln and Paul Reynolds of Georgia, to Donald Lawless, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lawless of Crystal Springs.

The wedding will take place Dec. 19 at the Church of the Annunciation at Kiln.

Miss Reynolds is a graduate of Hancock North Central School and the University of Southern Mississippi. She is now teaching at S.J. Ingram Elementary School.

Castles In SPAIN...

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON From HANCOCK BANK ABOUT The WISDOM OF SHOPPING AT HOME

According to the ballad writers you'll find your "Castles in Spain —right in your own back yard."

There is, however, a tendency among Christmas Shoppers to believe that they can find something "different," or less expensive or newer in New Orleans or Mobile, in gift catalogues or distant cities.

Each year, many thousands of dollars leave the Coast because of this mistaken belief. Despite the fact that modern merchandising puts all goods within easy reach of all consumers at consistently competitive prices, many of us continue the old habit of shopping away from home.

This is a costly practice in more ways than one. The dollars we spend in another city are dollars lost to our schools, park districts, street departments and our recreational facilities which are the backbone of the Coast's economy.

May we suggest — "If you can buy it any place, you can buy it at home." Your local merchant is doing everything in his power to make your Christmas shopping convenient, pleasant and economical. This Holiday Season, why not help him and thereby help ourselves? You'll find he wants your business and your community NEEDS the dollars you will spend!

Rev. Kevin Bambrick, pastor, celebrated the nuptial mass.

Miss Gracie Lee of Leetown was maid of honor and the groom had as best man his roommate at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Mr. and Mrs. Mazarakis were hosts at a reception at their home on St. Joseph Street following the ceremony after which the couple left for a brief wedding trip to New Orleans.

They are now occupying an apartment in Hattiesburg where they have resumed studies at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Among those from out of town coming for the ceremony were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bollar, and Mrs. J.R. Woodcock and daughter, Sandra, from Long Beach.

[illegible] Ladner's Hawk Cagers opened the season [illegible] by taking the Invitational Round Robin Tournament at Pearl River Central. The Hawks placed [illegible] winning all three games in the event which was [illegible] by the team winning the most games. They beat [illegible] Saturday night in a game that showed the Hawks' [illegible] Many obstacles hindered the Hawks the first [illegible] season to get started. Shelby Holden recently w[illegible] a 7 lb. 3 oz. boy, Tod Joseph. The christening was at Annunciation Catholic Church with Hubert Bilbo and Mrs. Jack Kistler standing. A reception followed at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Bilbo in Kiln.

Our deepest sympathy goes to Mrs. Ester Harriel and the family and friends of Ed Harriel who died last week. A well known and much liked person in the North County Mr. Harriel was born in Crane Creek and taught school in Catahoula for many years. As principal of North Bay Elementary Mr. Harriel served six years as a devoted educator for which he will always be remembered.

The Hancock North Central seniors have been working frantically to get their research papers completed and ready for the deadline. Mr. Walter C. Demiens, English prof. at HNC is responsible for the high standards now required of our students. Complaints over having to do the papers come from the students, but after having completed them it is now realized it was only for the good of all.

The Hawk football squad ended their season with an invitation to play in a Jaycee Bowl at Bay St. Louis. There was a great deal of excitement and talk about a return match with the mighty Tigers or a meet with the Rock-A-Chaws. The Bowl was called off because there was no one willing to play against the Hawks. I have been asked to make this statement and say that the Hawks were ready. But what happened to the others?

: HOME ON LEAVE – Curtis Tartavoulle, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Tartavoulle, is spending his 15-day leave with his parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Lafontaine, all of Bay St. Louis. He formerly attended Bay High School and will return to Norfolk, Va., when his leave ends.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Ladner are the proud parents of a baby girl 9 lbs. 2 oz., born last Sunday at Crosby Memorial Hospital, Picayune.

The Hancock North Central High School marching band decked out in their new military styled red, white and blue uniforms presented a marching drill half-time show recently to end the football season for the Hawks. The band saluted the senior members of the unit at which time, they stepped forward to be introduced. They are Edna Moran, drum majorette, Leroy (Bobby) Perronne, tuba and baritone; Shirley Shaw, flute; Linda Stewart, percussion; John Necaise, percussion; Otecia Ledner, tenor sax; and Mary Lee, French

WEAR NEW JACKETS – Bay St. Louis city policemen are now wearing new navy winter jackets and matching ties as part of winter uniform.

Capt. Charles J. Bor[illegible], Jr., 33, whose parents live on Rt. 2, completed a transportation officer career course at the Army Transportation School, Fort Eustis, Va., Oct. 30.

A recent addition to the HNC decor is a mounted copy of our late President John F. Kennedy's inaugurial speech. It has not been decided yet where it will be placed.

Rev. Kenneth Brown, assistant to the pastor of Annunciation Parish and head of the Catholic Youth Organization, is interested in organizing a basketball team from Kiln. Any male interested is asked to contact Father Brown at the rectory in White Cypress.

Tom Logue, administrator of Hancock General Hospital and commander of the National Guard post in Hancock County, spoke to the Hancock North Central senior boys recently on "why I should think about joining the National Guard."

The Human Relations class headed by Mrs. G. S. Kennedy has been viewing a series of educational and entertaining films in the belief that one picture is worth a thousand words, etc. The sports minded of the group enjoyed the film last week "Duck Hunting in North Carolina with Ted Williams." The female set sat patiently by making such comments as "poor little things," "Oh, that's mean," etc.

A message to the people of Hancock County

Many people of this community are under the impression that they can get better prices on furniture and appliances by going to Gulfport or New Orleans to do their shopping.

Yet my store here in Bay St. Louis consistently has lower prices on the same brand merchandise that some people travel 60 miles to buy at so called 'sale prices".

Another important item is SERVICE. When you buy an appliance from New Orleans or Gulfport, you do not get service- consequently if you do have trouble you have to pay for a service call- whereas my store gives you complete service guarantees and backs up these guarantees with fast, efficient and satisfactory service work.

Why go all the way to New Orleans or Gulfport- check the advertising in these cities- check their price - then come in to my store and see if my price isn't just as good and often better!

Just because I'm a small hometown business doesn't mean that I can't qive you supermarket prices.

Thank you,
Roy L. Saux
